

Who am I?

- Name: Anlu Shi (施安路)
- Age: 25
- Nationality: China
- Hometown: Jinhua City, Zhejiang Province (浙江省金华市)
- Affiliation: Quantum Materials Lab, Department of Physics, Graduate School of Science, Kyoto University (DC1)
- Master's degree: Department of Chemistry, Graduate School of Science, Kyoto University (2012 ~ 2015)

Why Japan?

- Strong background in research of natural science (especially for Kyoto University)
- Modern Japanese culture (comics, literature, etc.) is interesting
- Learning Japanese is a good chance to experience different culture
- Japan is close to China (only 2 hours from Kansai airport to Shanghai)
- Delicious food & good environment
- Kind people

Tips for learning English

- Read more (textbooks, articles, etc.) and try to write something down of your own
- Try to combine your hobbies with English
- Think in English mind
- Feel free to talk with foreigners
- Listen more to get accustomed to the tunes & speed
- Take an examination (TOEFL iBT recommended)
- Travel to foreign countries and make some friends

Some tools

- TED (Technology, Entertainment, Design)

<https://www.ted.com/>

a variety of themes covering all of social life

- Podcasts

subscribe the ones you like through iTunes

- NPR news

<http://www.npr.org/>

real-time update

TED Ideas worth spreading*

Contact with me

- E-mail address

shi@scphys.kyoto-u.ac.jp

Welcome to contact with me if you have any questions or comments or complains!

Thank you!